

Manufacturing of the modules is technologically challenging process which requires comprehensive professional know-how. The entire development of BISOL's products is the result of in-house skills. State-of-the-art automated production line was customer designed and to large extent includes in-house development.

